

No. I fly twice a week and would be impacted personally on a regular basis. Cellphones first and foremost a convenience. Unfortunately, they are becoming ubiquitous in almost all settings in our society due to the public's unrestrained use of cellphones. They have become a public nuisance and there is nothing I can see that cannot wait until the plane lands.